THE FORWARD MOVEMENT IN CLEVELAND PRESBYTERY

COMMENTS

The chart is a graphic study of the total giving of our churches to Presbyterian causes over a period of two decades. Miscellaneous gifts are not included. Account is taken of gifts to our own church causes only, as cleared through the treasuries of the individual churches, the Church Extension Committee and the Presbyterian Union.

It is not wholly satisfactory because of the changing and varying practice of the churches in reporting their gifts.

For example, up to 1918, when the New Era Movement began, it was not uncommon for churches to include in their reports large special individual gifts that never passed through the church treasury at all. This is illustrated in the chart which shows that in 1903 Old Stone alone reported $85,000.00 given in college aid.

To-day such individual gifts are not reported, as to swell the church total would invite a larger New Era quota. This accounts for the sharp drop of the chart line in 1919.

Hence the chart is necessarily inexact in its comparisons. Were it possible to eliminate from it all individual gifts during the period, the showing of our progress since 1911, when our forward movement began, would be much more striking. As it is, our per capita went up from $4.81 to $11.30.

Most important in this gratifying advance has been the strong development of our own work in Cleveland Presbytery dating from 1911. Our own home mission program, involving ten years ago a regular annual expenditure in aid of only $6,000.00, has now grown to such proportions as to call for no less than $110,000.00 a year.

This program may be briefly described as one of (1) Sustentation—budget aid being given to 22 churches and missions, (2) Special Centers—North and Woodland being centers of concentrated effort and expenditure, (3) Foreign Work—with one Hungarian and one Italian church and two Italian missions, (4) Daily Vacation Bible Schools—of which we had 16 last year, (5) Harkness Camp—800 children received each summer, (6) Building—aid being given by the Presbyterian Union, (7) Headquarters Co-operation—service in publicity, financial campaigns and otherwise, (8) Colored Work—St. Mark's Church of 165 members.

Our advance in benevolences has not been at the expense of church support. Pastors' salaries have largely increased. The per capita average of congregational expenses, since 1902, was $19.91; last year it was $24.64.

Third season great success. Five camp periods provided 10-day outing for 800 children and mothers, at total cost of $11,963.71. New recreation building. Dining-room and kitchen enlarged. New cottages for mothers. New well. A camp to be proud of.

A Personal Word

I may be pardoned if, at the end of a decade of service as superintendent of church extension, I speak a personal word as I bring to a close this little record of Presbyterian activities in the city and presbytery of Cleveland.

Ten years ago church extension was an unfamiliar word in our vocabulary. In Chicago Dr. Edgar P. Hill had recast the home mission organization and program under this new name, and given it a significance that attracted the attention of other cities. Cleveland was among the first to follow and today no less than eighteen of our city presbyteries have a standard church extension organization with a Presbyterian Headquarters and a superintendent or executive secretary. The city task of the church was hardly conceived ten years ago as a distinctive home mission problem; today the whole church begins to realize that New York City itself is a home-mission field into which the church must pour faith, prayer and money.

Cleveland, a decade ago, thought little of her own home-mission task; today our work among the Hungarians and Italians, our daily vacation Bible schools, our summer camp, our building co-operation, and in particular our effort at our two special centers, North and Woodland, to hold for Protestantism ground from which all other English-speaking churches have fled, have brought into co-operation with us both the Synod of Ohio and the Home Board, and at Woodland the whole denomination watches what we are doing and stands behind us.

Ten years ago our morale as a city force seemed to have broken down. The Presbyterian Union was profoundly discouraged. Two different financial campaigns had failed of their goals. Even Dr. Haydn's indomitable leadership could carry only half way to success the last effort he made in the Union. It was not he that had broken down, but our organization. The time had come for reshaping our whole force and program. With individualism rampant and co-operation at its lowest, we were forced to action.

During the ten years that have followed we have achieved an intimate understanding and co-operation between the Presbyterian Union and the Church Extension Committee, so that the old friction is gone and we work together as a single force. We have completely recovered our morale. We have twice succeeded in five-year fund campaigns, the first for $100,000 and the second for $150,000, and put under our work a solid financial footing. There prevails among us now a spirit of faith, courage and hopefulness, and there grows among us a fellowship, delightful in contrast with the state into which we had fallen ten years ago.

No one would rejoice more over these years of recovery and progress than Hiram C. Haydn were he with us today. He was my father and inspirer in faith and service. His vibrant enthusiasm for the Kingdom, his truly apostolic missionary zeal, his unfailing spirit of helpfulness, his love and care for all the churches, his restless energy, and that soul of prophet and pioneer that burned so brightly within his frail body remain with me an inspiring memory and mark for us all the type of spirit on which depends our hope of continuing growth and power in this great presbytery in that Tomorrow which our Lord holds in His keeping.
